

MLA STYLE CITATION GUIDE

Modern Language Association (MLA) Style is commonly used for academic writing in a wide range of subjects and disciplines, particularly in the arts and humanities.

Most citations include 3 key elements: (1) author's name, (2) title or source, and (3) publication information.

- Underline or italicize titles; italics are preferred for bibliographies published on the Web.
- Follow elements with a period and two spaces.
- Additional elements such as number of volumes, edition numbers, or Web address and date of access may be required.
- List each source separately; arrange alphabetically by author's last name or title if there is no author.
- Consult the MLA Handbook (cited in Anatomy, below) and/or the MLA Home page (<http://www.mla.org>) for more examples and explanation and for information on citing sources in the text.

ANATOMY of an MLA CITATION

Below is a citation for a book with a single author. Consult the title page and the back of the title page for citation information.

Other types of materials require different elements, such as article title and issue date for periodicals; and URL and date of access for anything accessed on the Web. Follow the examples in this guide to format citations according to the type of information you are citing.

BOOKS

- By a single author: Moran, Theodore H. Beyond Sweatshops: Foreign Direct Investment and Globalization in Developing Countries. Washington, D.C.: Brookings, 2002.
- Two authors: Christianse, John B., and Irene W. Leigh. Cochlear Implants in Children: Ethics and Choices. Washington, D.C.: Gallaudet UP, 2002.
- Three authors: Venolia, Jean P., Georgio Cordini, and Joseph Hitchcock. What Makes a Literary Masterpiece. Chicago: Hudson, 1995.

PERIODICAL ARTICLES

Include author's name (when shown), title of article, periodical name, and page numbers.

- Journal citations should include the volume and issue number, and the publication year.
- For magazine and newspapers, omit the volume and issue number and include the complete date.
- For full text articles from electronic databases, add the database title and publisher, library through which you gained access and city and state (if it is not clear from the library name), date of access, and URL

WORLD WIDE WEB SITES & SOURCES

First determine the type of source:

- For sources that exist only on the Web, follow the examples below.
- Include: Author (if known), title of the article or webpage (in quotes), title of the complete work (italicized or underlined), date of electronic publication or the latest update, organization sponsoring the site (if applicable), date you accessed the document, and complete URL. If the URL is extremely long and cumbersome, list the URL of the site's search page.

World Wide Web Site:	Civil Rights in Mississippi Digital Archive . 16 Nov. 2004. University of Southern Mississippi Libraries. 6 Oct. 2005 < www.lib.usm.edu/~spcol/crda >.

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

If no individual author is shown, give the governmental body (e.g., Washington State, City of Seattle), followed by the agency name, and the usual publication information (title, place, publisher and date). For most federal publications, the publisher will be the Government Printing Office, which can be abbreviated 'GPO.'

Issued by a state agency:	Washington State. Washington State University, Pullman Cooperative Extension. Raising Rabbits, Helpful Suggestions for Beginners . Extension Bulletin 0975. Pullman: WSU, 1991.
Federal Publication:	United States. Commerce Dept. An Act to Provide the Small Business Administration Continuing Authority to Administer a Program for Small Innovative Firms, and for Other Purposes . Washington: GPO, 1986.

AUDIOVISUAL MATERIALS

In general, citations for AV materials must include author (if available), title, producing company and date. Other elements vary depending on the type of material, so refer to the MLA Handbook. For films, if you are citing a videocassette or DVD include the medium before the name of the distributor. For music, if you are using a format other than compact disc (CD), indicate as shown in the examples below.

- Film (VHS or DVD): Super Size Me. Dir. Morgan Spurlock. DVD. The Con, 2003.
- Television or Radio Program: "Cuba and Cocaine." Narr. Bill Moyers. Frontline. Documentary Consortium. PBS. WTVS, Miami. 18 Jan. 1990.
